FAMILY WINERY AND VINEYARDS

WE ARE GENERATIONAL FARMERS. OUR PRIORITY HAS ALWAYS BEEN TO CONNECT PEOPLE TO THE LAND THROUGH WINE.

Brad and Randall Lange, twins and fourth-generation Lodi winegrape farmers, grew up and raised their families on the land we still farm to this day. Their respect for the land and passion for preserving it for future generations is our foundation and influences our everyday practices.

In 2005 the fifth-generation made a lifelong commitment to the family company, joining the business with roles spanning across both the winery and viticulture teams. It was at this time, we built the winery - a generational decision to ensure our farm, communities, and the agricultural way of life thrives.

SUSTAINABLE WINEGROWING

From childhood adventures playing ‘Tom Sawyer’ on the Mokelumne River to working with their dad and grandpa, Brad and Randall formed a true respect for the land which developed into being responsible land stewards. This commitment guides our daily farming and business practices to ensure they benefit our land, business, team and the communities in which we live.

ESTATE VINEYARDS

Great wine starts in the vineyard. This philosophy, coupled with our focus on sustainability, informs our viticulture decisions across the regions in which we farm. We farm twenty-nine varieties across sixty-seven vineyards and certify our vineyards through The Lodi Rules for Sustainable Winegrowing.

ESTATE WINERY

When looking towards the future, our family knew that building an estate winery would ensure our family would stay on the land, farming and protecting it for generations to come. With each family member dedicated to our company, our love for farm and family lies in each bottle of wine.
